Candy G. Molia wants to live in a world where there is peace, love and unity. As an artist and Hip Hop community leader, she has been spotlighted on Who Can Roast Most exhibition series as first Bgirl (female breakdancer) 5 round exhibition in 2002, The Bboy Spot blog, RedBull Blog and Laura Leandra Production "Artist of the Week". Her dance theater work "Bgirl Ballet" was featured in Martha Cooper's "We BGirlz" book tour and "All The Ladies Say" Documentary. She has been judging breaking event for over a decade, judging the first Outbreak in 2005. She has received awards at Silverback Open (Solo Bgirl top 8), PRO AM Games International Conference, Rock the Floor National Championship, Bgirl City, and SouthEast Championship for her contribution and preservation of the Hip Hop culture and has also received the Awesome Foundation Grant, 2 times. She was founding president of the United Breakin Association, a trade association that helps educate and protect competitive breakers and co-founder of Child of this Culture Foundation, nonprofit Arts&Culture organization based in Florida. She represents her all female crew Floor Angelz established in 1998 and recently joined the legendary Boston crew Floorlords. When she's not traveling and teaching about the hip hop culture, you can find her healing professional athletes, and watching anime with her amazing 13 year old daughter and fiance'. Her recently released picture book, "I am Hip Hop" is currently available on Amazon. Learn how to rhyme, break, spin and paint at childofthisculture.com.
